As one looks into a pond he sees himself and the things around him, colors, shapes, and forms, all blended into a very attractive picture—a picture which may tell a story.

This year, we, the editors of the BLACK and GOLD, chose as our theme "Reflections". These stories of the past may be visible not only through mirrors and ponds but also through experiences of day by day living among our surrounding here at Reynolds High School, where we have spent five wonderful growing years, contributing, we trust, our part and certainly gleaning a major portion of those inner visions which are firmly established within these walls. We have enjoyed every phase of school life, from representing the "Demon" on the cover, to the appreciation of our academic halls. We believe that these cherished memories will come alive again and again for you in these picture reflections.

Since we, the class of 1963, are the last class to remain at Reynolds five years, we shall always have more pleasant moments to recall than any other future graduating class.

We, the staff of the BLACK and GOLD, count it a privilege to present to you, the students of Reynolds High School, our idea of five beautiful years of work and play in picture memories.

REFLECTIONS

August brought early morning football practice.

Not far from the football field the cheerleaders were practicing.

Boots rehearsed new routines.

At the game S.S.C. boys always came through with our demon.

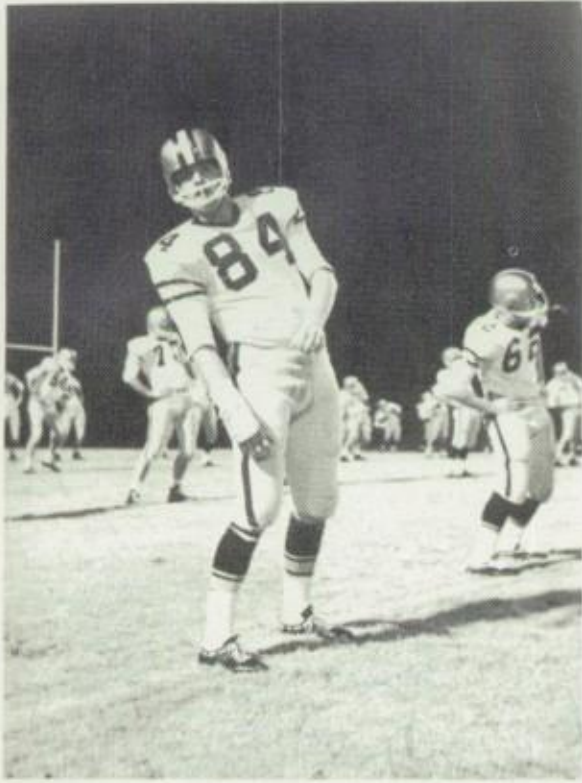

For the first year we had a mascot.

The landing remained our number one meeting place.

OF THE PAST

Football players warmed up with pre-game exercises.

College day reminded us of the serious aspects of school.

Vicki Currin was crowned Football Homecoming Queen.

Our majorettes and band performed in the annual Christmas parade.

Basketball season put the Monogram Club to work.

Picture taking brought mass confusion.

Coach Whitley gave last-minute instructions.

"Gypsy Rose" Clowes enlivened our Homecoming chapel.

Carol's crowning highlighted our basketball season.

Search for Joe's contact lens interrupted the Hanes game.

Jim Ballard brought outstanding honor to our school in science.

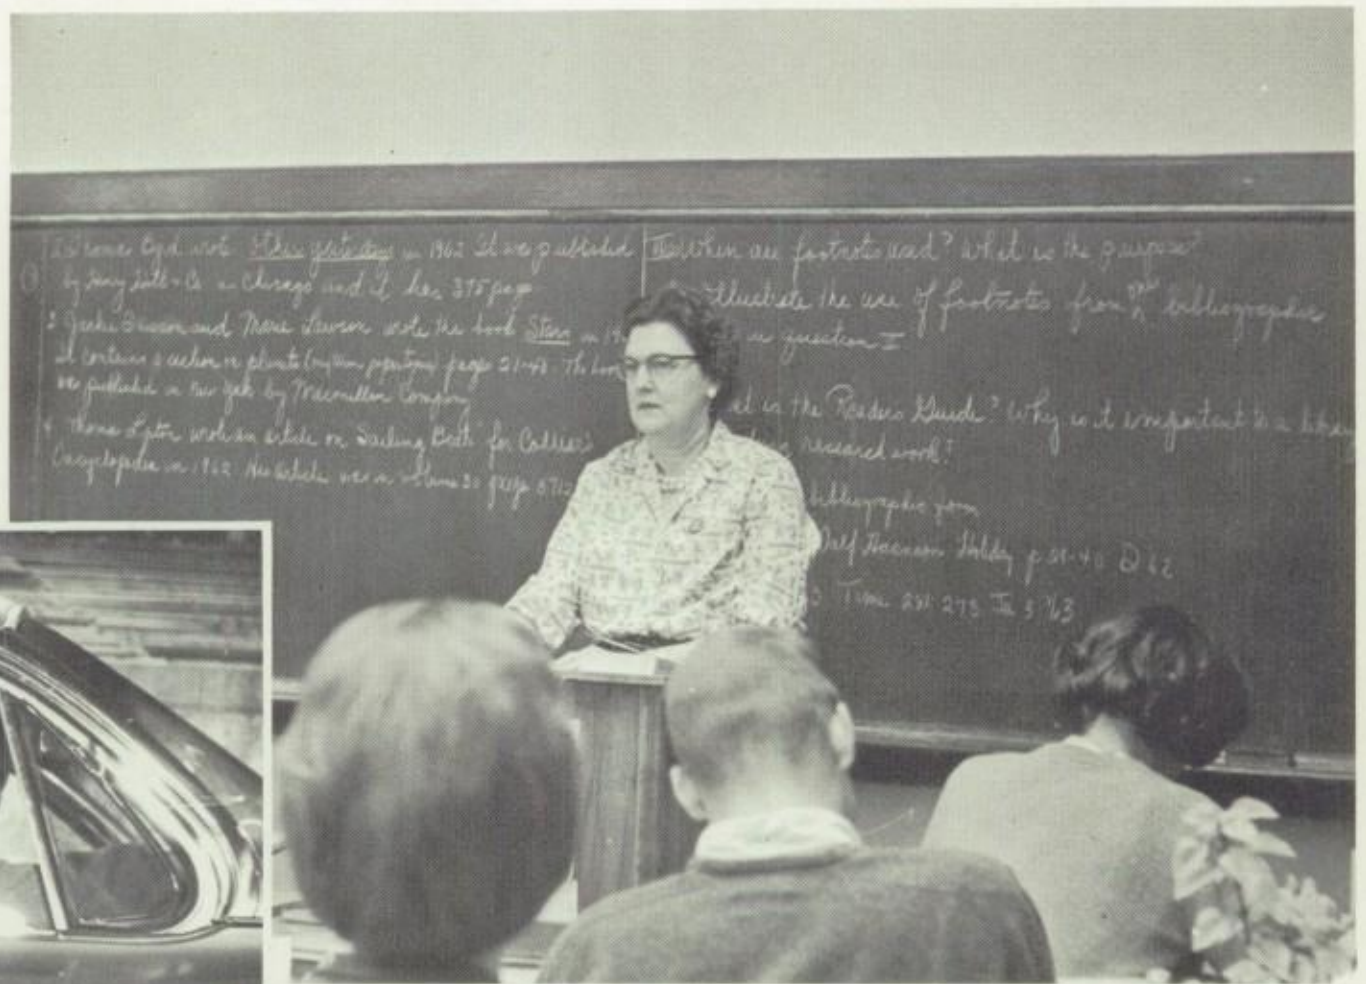

School's out; seniors shout.

Miss Annie Graham Caldwell

For her never-ceasing thoughtfulness and consideration, for her willingness to give up her own time to help others, for her understanding attitude whenever problems arose, for her sincere and deep concern for every student, we, the senior class, dedicate this issue of the BLACK and GOLD to Miss Annie Graham Caldwell.

Since her accident, Miss Caldwell, our former librarian, has taught history.

Miss Caldwell was a most faithful supporter of our football team.

Faculty and Classes

To each student and teacher 7:00 and 8:30 will always have a special meaning. We all rise at 7:00, or there about, and we all start our first period class at 8:30. From here the similarity ceases, and these two groups begin to complement each other.

At Reynolds High School there has always been between students and faculty a great deal of co-operation, friendship, and exchange of ideas. This is an asset of our school which few other high schools can claim. We are proud of our varied curriculum, our outstanding teachers, and our student body, which each student and teacher feels cannot be surpassed.

For organizing class activities, translating Cicero and Virgil, or simply giving us advice, the senior class of 1963 is deeply appreciative of our class sponsor, Mrs. Margaret McDermott. Without her guidance and wit, our high school year would not have been as profitable or as enjoyable. All the seniors who have known Mrs. McDermott will always hold her memory deep within their hearts and will miss her greatly in future years.

Throughout the year Mrs. McDermott works with the Executive Committee on senior activities.

The Senior Class chose brother of Susan James, Whit, and sister of Ann Laughter, Susan, as the Senior Mascots.

In order to raise money for the Shriner's Hospital, each year boys are chosen from various schools in North and South Carolina to participate in the Shrine Bowl which is held in Charlotte, N. C. This year our school was honored by having two outstanding football players chosen: Joe Gaddy, blocking back, and Bob Graham, center.

H O N O R

Chosen by the first and second year journalism students, Elaine Tucker received the honor of Journalism Student of the Year. Elaine, a second-year student, is Co-Editor of the Black and Gold and serves as a reporter for the Pine Whispers.

Selected from all junior girls, Ruth Blackwell was chosen as D.A.R. Good citizen for 1962-63. Excellence in leadership, character, and citizenship were the basis for this honor.

PAGE

Each year, Student of the Year is selected by the journalism classes not only for academic accomplishment but also for the part the student takes in extra curricular activities and in service to our school. This year Ellen Kirby was selected Student of the Year.

In a city-wide essay contest, sponsored by the Winston-Salem Jaycees, Robin Beach received the title of Teenager of the Year. The requirements for this honor were character, academic and social leadership, and service to school and community.

Organizations

Organizations at Reynolds are much more than clubs to join or societies to add to your name. Each one serves a unique, specific purpose and operates with efficiency and motive. Not only are they a necessary part of our school life, but they also add to the development of each student. There is a place for any interested student, regardless of whether he prefers sports or music, dramatics or languages, science or art.

Student Council

Judy Pearce, sec; Roger Pike, treas; Kent Wilcox, v-pres.; Rick Crowder, pres.

Nominated and elected by the student body, the members of the council strive to establish and maintain, by precept and example, high standards of honor and moral responsibility. Being the oldest branch of the student cooperative government, the council has as its standard the Honor Policy by which Reynolds High School students, as intelligent and responsible young people, must abide.

This year the council chose a citizen of the week and a citizen of the year; they also printed handbooks for all students and led prayers during exams.

To each student for his contribution goes the deep appreciation of the council for 1962-1963.

First Row Marsha Sams, Ruth Blackwell, Pam Hubbard, Pam Davis
Second Row Kent LaRoque, Chuck Matthews, Carter Lambeth.

The main objectives of the House of Representatives are to promote co-operation and courtesy among all school members and to improve the general welfare of the school. To fulfil these objectives the House has put on drives to lessen congestion on the stairs, to eliminate trash in the lunchroom and on the school grounds, and to prevent discourtesies, such as breaking into the lunch line. Two projects performed in co-operation with the Student Council were editing and circulating a school handbook and putting on a program to welcome and partially indoctrinate junior high students who will be coming to Reynolds next year.

The House is composed of a representative from each home room. From this body two seniors, one junior, and one sophomore are elected to serve on the House Court. The sponsors of the House are Mrs. Flack and Mrs. Reich.

BLACK AND GOLD

ELAINE TUCKER

Members of Black and Gold staff identify pictures.

All confusion is at a minimum during the early months of assembling classes, organizations, and teachers for their pictures. Then as the February "disastrous deadline" draws down upon the annual staff they frantically struggle to snap those last pictures, type the final pages of script, and line the remaining dummies. Co-editors, Elaine Tucker and Dixie Thomas, head a small staff of nine second-year journalism students. Keeping the theme a secret, trying to please everybody, attempting to produce an original annual, working sixth and seventh periods, after school, and Saturdays, are only a few of the other problems the Black and Gold staff encounters. Tom Ward, Bill Petree, and John Middleton as photographers provide the only "outside" help. It was worth all the frantic effort when the 1963 Black and Gold returned to home-room 120, and the staff gazed with parental admiration at their child.

Vicki Currin, Chick Scales, Susan James, attempt to get senior activity sheets into order.

Jeff Farran, Jean Brown, and Judy White search other annuals for new ideas.

PINE WHISPERS

GAIL WRIGHT
Co-editor

Pine Whispers staff are reminded of February deadline.

Four times each year the Pine Whispers staff found themselves surrounded by layouts, assignment sheets, pictures, headlines, captions, and red pencils. Searching for current news, interesting features, meaningful editorials, and uncovered sports, the nine staff members combed Reynolds. Making trips to the publisher, taking exams, recruiting help from first year students was a part of the many activities of the frantic few. To give equal coverage to all clubs, to criticize without offending, to be original without being bizarre were a few of their problems.

Co-editors, Gail Wright, as Journal and Sentinel correspondent, and Caroline Carlton, as WAIR student reporter spread R. J. R. news beyond the Pine Whispers.

Chick Scales, Jean Brown, and Vicki Currin proofread the last addition of the Pine Whispers.

National Honor Society

Led by the sponsors, Miss Mataline Collette and Miss Mary Martin, the national Honor Society combined wisdom and experience in serving R. J. R. Filing 1500 schedule cards, guiding lost sophomores, co-sponsoring College Day, helping at the PTA Open House, and sponsoring Faculty Appreciation Day were several projects carried out this year. Twice during the year, the members donned the solemn black robes and sealed their lips as they prepared to induct new students into the Honor Society.

Quill and Scroll

The Quill and Scroll is an international honor society for students achieving distinctive work in the field of journalism. At Reynolds most of the chapter's activities are preparing the Pine Whispers and the Black and Gold for press.

Requirements for membership are outstanding journalistic contributions on the school publications, an honor average, and an E on deportment.

Masque and Gavel

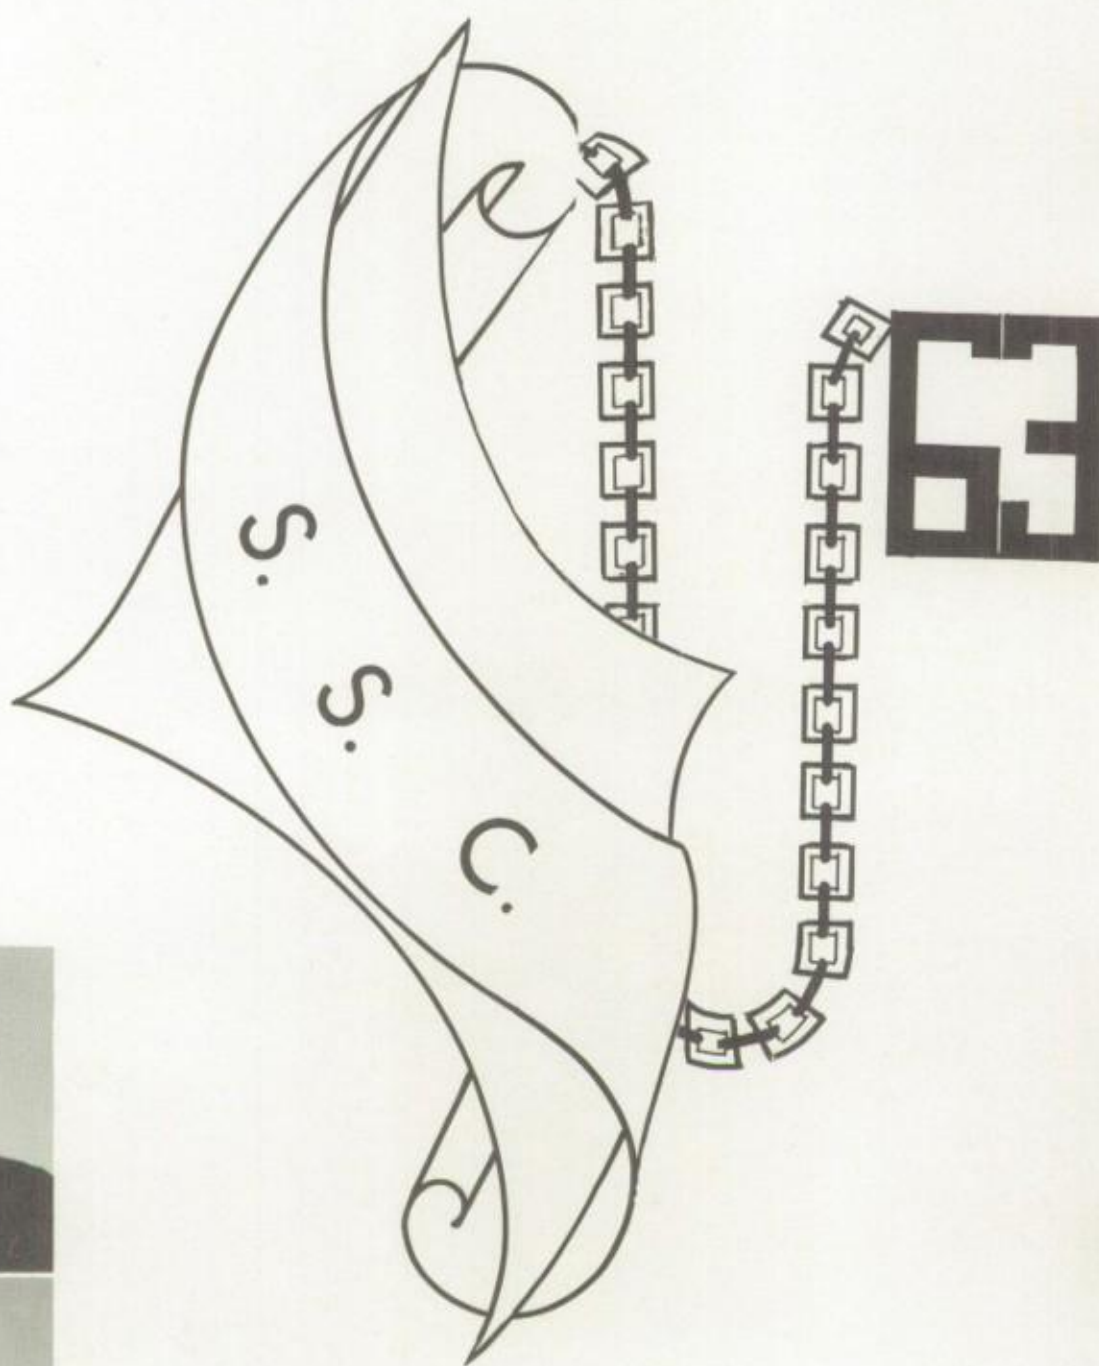

Recognizing outstanding students in the fields of public speaking and dramatics, the Masque and Gavel, a national organization, is one of the three honor societies at Reynolds. New members are tapped at a formal induction in the spring. In addition to having done excellent work in speech, every inductee must have an honor average, excellent deportment, and approval of the faculty sponsor and the old members.

SENIOR SERVICE CLUB

Alan Clowes, pres.; Peter Orr, vice-pres.; Don Hensley, treas.; Terry McAden, sec.; Howard Chipman.

The Senior Service Club is a Reynolds High School service club which promotes school spirit and provides various services. Among their projects are distributing books at the beginning of the year, washing blackboards, and giving the traditional Christmas tea for the faculty. The S. S. C. also promotes school spirit with their "beat 'em" tags, bonfires, and homecoming parades.

Through the course of a few years the S.S.C. service and standards have steadily increased.

Mr. Deaton, Assistant Principal, offers advice and guidance to the boys.

Mr. Mitchell provided a helping hand for the Key Club boys.

Byung Shik Choy—Korean boy adopted by the Reynolds Key Club through Foster Parents' Plan.

Ruth Blackwell, Key Club Sweetheart.

As a result of Key Club work, a clean court, painted tunnel, sixty new room numbers, clean windows, black and gold trash cans, the huge Christmas star, and an improved parking lot for the teachers greet students and visitors when they come to R. J. R., while two demon heads and eight conference banners await them in the gym. Key clubbers put on skits and sell novelties before football games, give refreshments to the cheerleaders during games, and sponsor dances after games. Donations this year included 175 cans of food for Thanksgiving, 200 toys for needy children at Christmas, and $100 for March of Dimes. Three thousand books were carried in August; pennants were given to the cheerleaders and majorettes; and flowers were given to the football Homecoming sponsors. Through the Foster Parents Plan, the members adopted a Korean boy. Highlight of the year was in April, when a capacity crowd attended the Key Club Follies to reminisce of the "Roaring Twenties." Mr. McLean Mitchell, sponsor, furnished much sound advice throughout the year.

College Club

Miss Spencer and Miss Weaver offer guidance to the girls of the College Club.

Through the College Club, Miss Weaver and Miss Baker have prepared many senior girls for their college life. Guest speakers, helpful advice, and co-operative planning for the future are outstanding counsel which will not soon be forgotten.

Teenage Council

Sponsored by the City Recreation Department and under the direction of Mrs. Howard, the Teenage Council provides activities of entertainment and enjoyment for high school students. The Council annually sponsors a Halloween Dance in the fall and a Twirp Dance in the spring. Members of the council aided the City Recreation Dept. at Halloween by wrapping presents to give to the needy. The Council members aid the City Recreation Department in various projects throughout the year. After two earlier cancelations, in March the Council held a dance at the Armory with the "Riveareas Combo." Twice annually the council admits new members.

Members listen to Lynn Kimball explain the complications of the March dance.

Mrs. Garrison, teacher of public speaking and English, sponsors the Debating Club.

Every Wednesday afternoon until six o'clock Mrs. Evelyn Garrison coaches her team through practice debates on the national topic, Resolved: That the United States should promote a common market for the Western Hemisphere. Preparing for the Triangle, District, and Chapel Hill contests, Caroline Carlton and Robin Beach on the affirmative, and Gordon Jenkins and Eddie Southern on the negative compose this year's varsity team.

Besides debating, this activity sponsors three annual contests, the Declamation Contest for Boys, the Recitation Contest for Girls and the World Peace Speech Contest. Co-operating with the National Forensic League, members participate in student congresses throughout North Carolina. In the spring the junior varsity debating team will represent Reynolds at the Wake Forest Speech Festival.

Caroline Carlton, varsity debater, delivers her speech to the Debating Club.

Caroline Carlton, pres.; Robin Beach, v.-pres.; Janie Meschan, sec.-treas.

Betty Benton and Richard Goldberg display offstage acting.

Sponsored by James Hall, the Dramatics Club is an organization promoting interest and participation in the dramatic arts. Among the many facets of dramatic arts investigated by the club are major and minor production technique, producing, directing, scenery and staging, lighting and performing.

This year the Dramatics Club has the largest membership in its history with over fifty-five active members.

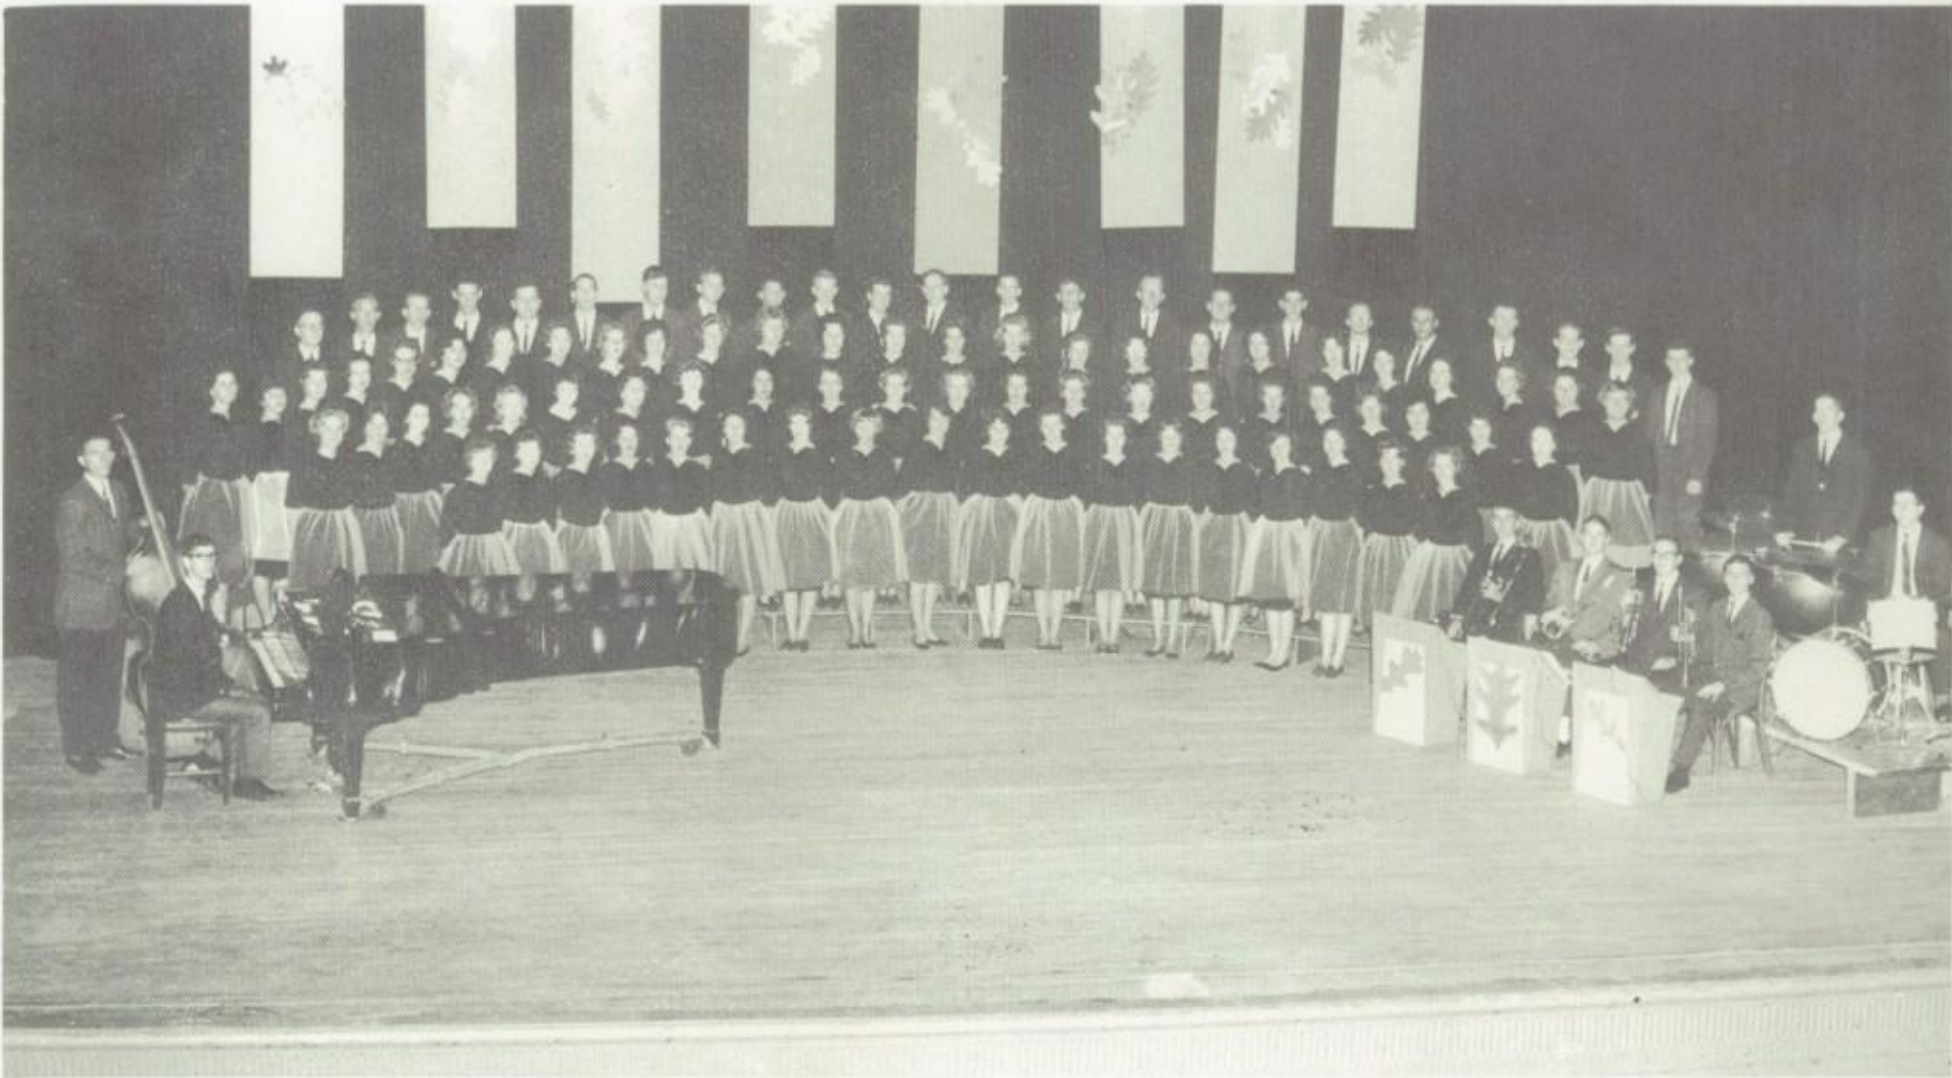

Divided into several different production groups for the first semester, the club presents a series of one-act plays, the best two of which are selected and presented at the three Drama Festivals or Contests in North Carolina. In the past seven years, the Reynolds Dramatics team has received nothing less than an "Excellent" rating, with three "Superior" ratings.

One of the most active organizations at Reynolds is the Chorus, which is composed of approximately one hundred students under the direction of Mr. James Hall. The Chorus is in great demand and has a very busy schedule all year round, performing at banquets, conventions, and concerts. This organization has a very bright future and expects to become more active each year.

Mr. Hall directs the chorus and is responsible for chorus chapel programs.

Carol Johnson and Glen Kelly practice their duet for the chapel program.

Chorus presents a fall chapel program.

Betty Benton and Richard Goldberg rehearse songs from "My Fair Lady."

Orchestra

The Reynolds High School Marching Band and Majorettes completed a successful year's work in February. After practicing and rehearsing every afternoon until 4:30 or 5:00, the marching band has performed at halftime for every game the Black Demons had this year. Few people realize the time and preparation that must go into the planning of a football half-time show. First, a theme must be established with proper music to accompany it, and most important, accurate and suitable formations for the theme and the band must be planned. This task was left up to Mr. LaRue Epler, Reynolds new Instrumental Music Instructor and Band Master. A special thanks to all the Dancing Boots and the Majorettes for helping to make this year one of the best possible for the R. J. Reynolds Marching Band!

Black

One of the first objectives of the orchestra is to instill in each member the qualities of fine musicianship. Under the direction of Mr. La Rue Epler the orchestra performed for various civic organizations and chapel programs throughout the year. Along with the pleasure earned from presenting performances, the orchestra attempts to increase the popularity of good orchestral music and appreciation of the string instruments.

Sports

1962-1963 has been an unforgettable sports season for R. J. Reynolds High School. Second in the state, our football team left an impressive record. Few teams in the history of our school have had such spirit. Later our basketball team went into action. This was a team which won and lost, but always brought us to our feet with cheers for its outstanding sportsmanship. Of course, we are not forgetting the girls varsity basketball team, the track team, the tennis team, and the newly established wrestling and swimming teams. All of these varied sports, in which hundreds of Reynolds students participated, added color and excitement to our high school year.

1962 football season will be long remembered as the students at Reynolds recall the success of the Black Demons from the first kick off to the conference championship and the state championship where the Demons finished second in the state. These were glorious days of mounting enthusiasm and great determination on the part of our team.

The Demons had depth at every position. When fullback Ed Graham was badly injured before the season started, Joe Newton stepped into the number one spot to keep that position strong. When tailback Dickie Walker was hurt, Gene Swearingen and Jimmy Loftis filled in ably.

The season began when Reynolds traveled to Lexington. Lexington was favored but they were beaten 14-7. The Demons started the season in fine fashion outgaining Lexington 216 yards to 89. Reynolds went on to beat Page 19-13 with three touchdowns made by Joe Newton. Our third victory was over cross-town rival Gray, 19-0.

Fourth on the list was High Point, which fell by a score of 21-12. In the next game the powerful Demons romped over Salisbury 48-0. Coach Wilson used all 62 varsity players and every unit seemed just as strong as the one before it. Reynolds beat Burlington 20-7 to stay undefeated and in first place in the Central 4-A Conference. Victory number seven came over Garinger as the Demons won 13-0.

The pressure was beginning to mount as it does on undefeated teams. On homecoming night the Demons played the number one ranked team in the state, Raleigh; however, Reynolds slid by Raleigh 7-0. Reynolds met East High School which was 9-0 for the season. The Demons won again 13-0 before 8,000 fans. The RJR defense held East to 16 yards on the ground. Their previous low was 160 and in all other games they had gained over 200 yards.

Next came the conference championship game at Greensboro. The teams fought to a 0-0 deadlock but the Demons won the championship because they had no losses.

With the pressure and excitement at a new high, Reynolds advanced to the semi-finals game with Gastonia. After the 0-0 tie, figures had to be tabulated to see which team had gained the most yardage. After a tense wait of 20 minutes the announcement came that Reynolds had won the game on yardage 217-214.

The state championship game played with Rocky Mount before 10,500 spectators, handed Reynolds their only loss of the season 20-6. The score was 7-6 going into the final quarter, but Rocky Mount scored twice to put victory out of reach. The Reynolds team had great reason to be proud. Their highly successful season was a team effort. There was no one player on the squad who could win games for the team. The games were won because of fierce blocking and tackling on the part of the line, and hard running on the part of the backs. The Black Demons finished second in the state due to great hustle, strong spirit, desire to win, and support from the Reynolds students.

Charlie Neal and Joe Gaddy served as Demon Co-captains.

Monogram Club

The Monogram Club is an honorary organization for Reynolds High School athletes who have received one or more letter awards for participation in varsity sports. Students who have obtained enough promise in their individual sports or sports to merit their earning a varsity letter have the privilege of becoming an active member of the Monogram Club. The sports in which a letter may be won are football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, golf, swimming, and wrestling. The club's sponsor is Mr. Wilson. These are the boys who have earned recognition due to their extra effort and work.

The Officials Club offers girls an opportunity both to develop leadership and to learn to follow authority simultaneously. To train officials, clinics are held for each sport in the intramural program. A girl must attend three out of five discussions and pass a written and practical test. The aim of the Officials Club is to stimulate better games and more exciting tournaments.

Exercise leading, checking dirty towels and shower sheets, calling games, stacks of typing and posters to be done—it is easy to see that the gym leaders do many things. The backbone of the physical education classes, the gym leaders help themselves by helping others to leadership and cooperation—these are the key words that guide the Gym Leaders Club in the Girls Physical Education Department.

Gym Leaders Club

Many girls could be found in the gymnasium after school participating in the intramural program of the Girls Athletic Association. The motto and aim of the club is "A sport for every girl and a girl for every sport." Opportunities for leadership in the Officials Club are available to any interested student. Varsity teams for speedball, basketball, tennis, and softball are selected by afternoon practices. In addition to these activities, the Girls Athletic Association presented in chapel a Thanksgiving turkey, sponsored a chapel for girls to explain their purpose, and played a major role in the Black and Gold campaign. Under the guidance of Mrs. Violet Nichols, the Girls Athletic Association holds monthly meetings. Helping to coordinate the group is the Council. To be eligible for membership a girl must earn 100 points in the after-school program and maintain both a C average and an S on deportment.

Class Poem

Midst Nature's majestic glory she stands;
Her vastness teaches all humility;
Her columns high do say "Forever strive!";
Her classic style shows our great heritage;
Her earth, now worn to paths by time and feet,
Remind us of the students past who came
With youth, found spirit keen and wisdom, too,
And left prepared to meet life's problems well.
Pines, vastness, columns, paths,
Forever part of us.

Not only beauty, spirit, grace, but more,
A gentle and most human warmth she gives.
Each day she shows through deeds both great and small
Her standards, teachings, and traditions,
Each everlastingly respected. She,
The molder of our character and soul,
Our Alma Mater, Reynolds High, deserves
Such thanks as we are unprepared to give.
Tradition, guidance, warmth,
Forever part of us.

In green the leaves may bud; in amber, fall;
Age may our bodies wither and our minds
Confuse. But marching time, however bold,
Cannot stamp out her image, firmly fixed
Upon our hearts. Through the most dreary night
And longest day will she, who helped us in
Our youthful years, be once again our guide,
To ages hence and ultimate depart.
The challenge of her goal,
Forever part of us.

Senior Class History

At this time we pause to look back upon our years at Reynolds. We stop to ask ourselves, "When did we come here?" This question may seem foolish, but it seems as if we have always been going to Reynolds and always will be, or at least will be in spirit.

EIGHTH GRADE

The graduating class of 1963 entered Reynolds High School on September 3, 1958. It was a large group of wide-eyed, eager, nervous and frightened youngsters that stood around the outside of the auditorium trying to figure out why everyone did not just go into the building and take his seat. In the years to follow, however, this "waiting period," as so many other events, was recognized as traditional. After assignments had been made, the trouble really started when the new eighth-graders began milling around the halls in search of room numbers. The massiveness of the building and those tremendously big people called "Seniors" did not help at all to make the little newcomers feel at home.

Fortunately, since all our studies were contained in two sections, we were greatly relieved to have to remember only two rooms in addition to the ever-popular cafeteria and that greatly-loved gymnasium. However, the most frantic problem was distinguishing the "up" stairs from the "down" stairs and trying to locate the corners of the building in terms of "east, west, north, and south." Oh, what a forbidden mistake, that of being caught in the middle of the stairs only to find that everyone else was going the wrong way. And none of our teachers would ever believe we were late because we got stranded on the stairs. Their only reply was "Think!"

And that is what we were doing. We thought about asking for binoculars for all the eighth-graders when we had to go to Chapel, or for escalators while climbing the heights of Mount Auditorium-Seat, or for hearing aids when we had a fine-arts speaker. But we did some serious thinking, too. We thought what a great feeling of security each of us would gain as we remained at Reynolds. Although far from secure in the eighth grade, we could look at the upper-classmen and see what feelings would one day be bestowed upon us. We also thought about organizations. Sports had already gotten under way with the football team going "all the way in triple A" (or can you remember when Reynolds was not a 4-A school?) This was one of the highlights of our years at Reynolds as it was the first year we were to be able to participate in the renowned "Reynolds school spirit."

Our memories may fail us as we think back over our first year at Reynolds. Think a little harder and you may recall the excitement of our very own bomb scare when Mr. Joyner and the Fire Police searched the buildings only to find that the heating system was in need of repair, as always. Of course, all the students unquestionably enjoyed the mid-week vacation. There were other eighth-grade traumas also. Do you remember locating your locker? And then trying to find your way back to class. Or perhaps you would walk by the chemistry room and ask someone who or what had died. Oft you may have been the lucky one to catch a frog as it leaped (?) out of a biology class window. Then again, if you happened to have a class on the fourth floor, you probably watched the repairman fix the auditorium roof or install the television antenna for Shorty's leisure moments.

Although the entire year was one of confusion and frustration, there was a very strong emotion of admiration. At last, we had become High School students . . . even without eighth grade graduation! But that was our first year at Reynolds as we stood staring open-mouthed at the masses of students and upperclassmen thinking, "One day, we're going to be on the top!"

NINTH GRADE

The idyllic summer over, we returned to find ourselves as real Senior High School students, even if we were still on the bottom. Later, this fact became more important. We were now expected to take up the slack of the lost eighth grade. We rallied bravely though, week by week destroying our melodious voices after the inspiring message the cheerleaders inevitably gave us: "Y'all ye-eh-ll!" The cheers rocked the ceiling, and the team marched on.

In preparation for our years as leaders, we now plunged white-hot into many activities—activities never before opened to us. Football, for instance, and basketball, baseball, and track. We were, of course, the most enthusiastic class in everything we did, but those in the band had a special reason: this year included a triumphant trip to Washington, to be repeated within two years.

School was not, however, one continuous extracurricular activity; we also had intracurricular activities —like the evacuation. Remember the sad countenances and the somber manner of our exodus. And we had been so eager to get to a day of hard study! But there we were, relegated to a day of idleness at the Robin Hood Drive-In.

We felt our need for the eighth-graders once more when the Black and Gold campaign rolled around. But again we rallied and the goal was met—easily of course, because prospective customers are so eager to relieve us of our burden.

Swiftly then, the year drew to a close. As it ended, we realized not only the finish of another school year but the destruction of another traditional part of Reynolds—the ninth grade. There was a slight pause as somebody contemplated our position at the end of a rich heritage. Ah well! Beaches, here we come!

TENTH GRADE

With the tenth grade came awareness. After two years at Reynolds, we finally became aware of just what was going on and we launched full swing into high school life. We began to separate the activities and organizations in which we were really interested from the many others, surging with force toward something. At last we contributed, no matter how little, to the school and started on the now dim and uncertain path toward the person we would be in the future.

As a half-day relief from school came the Dixie Classic Fair in October. We ate candied apples and pink cotton candy; we rode on the most dangerous looking rides and investigated the most interesting-looking side shows; we threw away money, with little reluctance, hoping to win a teddy bear; we came home tired and dusty trying to remember whether or not the teachers gave us any homework and not really caring, because we weren't going to do it anyway.

To our dismay, we became acquainted with biology, and "acquainted" was as far as some of us got! The lingering smell of long-dead worms, crayfish, and frogs amid the complicated list of names and more names will remain with us far longer than our knowledge of the course.

During the unendurable part of every school year—the part between Christmas and Easter vacations—came the joyous series of "white Wednesdays," when it snowed for five consecutive Wednesdays. Of course, a damper fell on this joy when, later in the spring, we trudged to school on Saturdays!

With spring came the Key Club Follies—their fun, their practices, their try-outs, and their work. Hidden talent and unique ideas were carefully put together to form an amazing series of acts. The auditions were filled with errors and fun; the practices were work and fun; planning the costumes was creative and fun; and the final Key Club Follies presentation was rewarding for the hard work, and even more fun! The Follies had come to be an event annually anticipated.

In the tenth grade most of us acquired our long-awaited licenses. Now, at last, at last, we gained the thrill of rushing to the crowded parking lot along with the stream of other people to search frantically for our car amid the endless confusion.

Along with our new feeling of awareness came new courage to venture on the landing, that entrance to the school upon which the boys line up in the morning and the upperclassmen meet in the afternoon. We quickly learned that the landing is also used for hitch-hiking. Familiar questions to be heard there were: "Do you have your car? May I have a ride home?"

We realized that with the end of our sophomore year came the end of us being the youngest in school, which in truth was something special which we alone could claim.

ELEVENTH GRADE

Our Junior year was a strange-wonderful one . . . nine months of beginnings and endings, of seriousness and fun, of wisdom and foolishness. It can best be characterized by "our arrival." Scholastically and socially we finally began to achieve those goals we had viewed with such awe since the eighth grade. This was to be our "social" year, yet looking back, parties composed only a small part of our many activities.

From the earliest September days, we realized that this year would be a very special one. After having held the coveted title of "Freshmen" for three years, we now were able to look haughtily at the "innocents" from the Junior Highs. Not only were we familiar with the teachers, the subjects, the Seniors, but also we were now upper classmen ourselves! It was an exhilarating feeling to watch the sophomores frantically looking for room numbers and hysterically running down the "up" stairs.

Enjoying our newly acquired superiority, we often attempted to impress the younger generation with the knowledge we had acquired. We knew that madras and weejuns were apropos, and that the Triangle was THE place to buy your after-date cokes. Dating became more important and it seemed as if the whole school was at the movies on Friday nights; that is, if we were not cheering at a football or basketball game. In the spring the big dances spurred us to a feverish pitch of business. The Twirp Dance found all the girls dating old steadies or prospective beaus in hopes of some later invitation. Most of us worked harder on the Junior-Senior than we had ever struggled over any class work. Decorating the gym and planning the biggest event of the year were almost more fun than the dance itself. The Old South was our theme, and the Rivas provided the music for the most fabulous Junior-Senior that Reynolds has ever given.

However, not everything was carefree and pleasant during our Junior year. We began worrying about college, especially after we received our first S.A.T. scores! With most of us carrying five subjects, the school work gave us plenty of worry too, but we were so busy that we had no time to indulge in much mental anguish. Chemistry plagued many unscientific brains and the orations of Cicero echoed through our dreams. We were thoughtfully given several days away from this hectic activity when the cafeteria dished out that unforgettable beef stew!

As our junior year came to a close, many of our classes received coveted honors as a result of their four-year struggle. Nineteen were inducted into the National Honor Society, and the Quill and Scroll and the Masque and Gavel added to their ranks outstanding students in the fields of journalism and speech. Other organizations held notable inductions. The S.S.C. and the Key Club selected boys eager to carry on the spirit and tradition of these two service clubs.

It was a year of good-byes. We put away our gym suits and tennis shoes, but we will never forget the cold showers and running through the tunnel. Our saddest good-bye was to Mr. Joyner. After 30 years of more than "highly desirable" service to Reynolds, Mr. Joyner graduated before we did.

But now we began to see within our grasp the long-awaited time . . . the time when we would be "The Seniors."

TWELFTH GRADE

The twelfth grade has been the maddest, fastest, most exciting year of all—the wild combination of everything that has gone before and everything that is going to be. We were now the leaders, responsible for ourselves and everyone else. We entered this year of our glory aware that much was changed and new. Reynolds had a new principal, new teachers, new classes, and new outlooks, yet at the same time the traditions were never stronger.

For instance, the beloved tradition of WORK! Fifty points of parallel, U. S. History, Virgil, and trigonometry. And who of you has dared forget: "Methought I heard a voice cry sleep no more; Macbeth has murdered sleep." None of us argued with that last statement. Of course, it wasn't all bad. How often did an evening at the library with your pet term paper turn into an evening at the Triangle with . . . oh, that was a secret, huh? And even if advanced classes meant getting up before the chickens (crows, bluejays, canaries, or what have you), those mornings were not wasted. Remember the rumors of the "moonshining" in Advanced Chem, or the whispers that Advanced Biology students were shooting frogs with morphine?

However, classes were the least of our worries this year because we were in a panic about the next year. Oh, those unfathomable applications the college of our (?) choice, the little picnics called "College Boards," the interviews, and the waiting. What would be the decisions from Duke and Davidson, from the National Merit and the Morehead people. Waiting—always waiting.

Yet we didn't exactly pine away those months—we were too busy running. Never did it fail that we would have four different meetings at 3:05 the same day, and being officers and chairmen, we always had to be there. This class of ours produced some of the most capable leaders Reynolds has yet known and all our skills, talents, and brains were put to work constantly. The Service Clubs topped one project with another, the honor societies contributed endlessly. We missed our Wednesday morning club periods, but the faithful kept right on coming after school. At the games it seemed the entire Senior class was on the field or leading cheers or marching with the band. Thus the year whirled by for us, and almost too soon the talk turned to graduation.

Our robes, which are swallowing us whole and tripping us up, our little brown bags of invitations, our pale and frothy dresses for class day—all the traditions of an era finally ours to keep. Oddly though, many of us are not at all sure we want to keep them yet. Looking down an empty hall devoid of all the familiar faces of five years, we realize what we are now preparing to relinquish. But then we think of Myrtle, and what our senior summer promises, and who can keep a straight face thinking of that.

Soon now we shall stand on that stage for the last time, hear our alma mater echo through the night and cherish forever one small phrase: "We're from Reynolds—we couldn't be prouder."
